UNION PETROCHEMICAL PUBLIC COMPANY LIMITED

ANTI-CORRUPTION POLICY

Revision No.	02
Revision Date	26 February 2025
Approved by the Board of Directors	Board of Directors' Meeting No. 2/2025
Effective Date	26 February 2025

ANTI-CORRUPTION POLICY

Union Petrochemical Public Company Limited (the "Company") conducts its business in accordance with good governance principles. The Board of Directors oversees and manages the Company with accountability, transparency and fairness, with a focus on creating long-term business value and promoting practices that make the Company a leading organization.

The Company is committed to preventing and combating all forms of corruption, recognizing that corruption seriously undermines free and fair competition and causes harm to economic and social development. The Company has carefully considered the risks of corruption in its business operations and has therefore established this Anti-Corruption Policy in writing, setting out clear guidelines for conducting business and developing a sustainable organization.

Definitions under the Anti-Corruption Policy

Corruption means bribery in any form, including offering, promising, giving, requesting or accepting money, property or any other improper benefit for or from a government agency, government official, private-sector organization or any person with a duty or responsibility, whether directly or indirectly. It is intended to cause that person to perform or refrain from performing a duty in order to obtain or retain business, refer business to the Company, or obtain or retain any other improper business advantage. This does not include conduct permitted by applicable laws, regulations, notifications, rules, local customs or trade practices.

Bribery means any act involving an offer, promise, giving, consent to a request for, or acceptance of a benefit in any form, including gifts, services, cash or other things of value, made directly or through another person to induce any action. This includes influencing a government official or an officer of an international organization to act contrary to applicable law or to the responsibilities of that official or officer.

Gifts, hospitality, accommodation expenses and other expenses mean gifts, hospitality, accommodation expenses and other expenses that do not affect the Company's business operations and are lawful. They must be customary, reasonable and openly provided in order to maintain good business relationships.

Financial support means money given to or received from customers, suppliers, business partners, shareholders or other organizations for business purposes, the sale of products, or the reputation of the Company, with the objective of creating business credibility or promoting the Company's business and good image.

Charitable contributions mean financial or other assistance provided as part of social activities for charitable or public purposes, for the benefit of society or the public, and to promote the Company's image. Such contributions must not be intended to generate business benefits or create a conflict between personal interests and the Company's interests.

Donations received mean cash, goods or other assets received for donation to charitable organizations.

Conflict of interest means a situation or action in which a director, executive or employee has a personal interest or an overlapping benefit that affects decision-making, prevents the person from performing duties impartially, or directly or indirectly affects the Company's interests.

Political assistance means providing financial support, gifts, and/or participation in activities, including encouraging employees to participate in political activities on behalf of the Company, for the purpose of obtaining commercial advantages for the Company. This does not include employees' participation in political activities in their personal capacity. Employees must not claim to represent the Company or use the Company's assets, equipment or tools for political activities.

Facilitation payments mean unofficial payments of any amount made to government officials to induce them to carry out a process or expedite a procedure that does not require their discretion and is part of their official duties, and to which the Company is legally entitled, such as applying for a permit, requesting a certificate or receiving a public service.

Anti-Corruption Policy

The Company prohibits directors, executives and employees from engaging in or accepting corruption in any form, whether directly or indirectly, involving themselves, their families, friends or acquaintances, whether as recipients, providers or proposers of bribes, in cash or otherwise, in dealings with government agencies or private-sector entities with which the Company conducts business or has dealings.

All personnel must strictly comply with this Anti-Corruption Policy. The Company will protect employees who refuse to give bribes that could lead to corrupt conduct. The Company will regularly review compliance with this Policy and revise its practices and operational requirements to keep pace with changes in business, regulations, rules and legal requirements.

Roles and Responsibilities

1. The Board of Directors is responsible for considering and approving this Policy and communicating it for implementation throughout the organization. The Board shall also oversee the establishment of effective systems to support anti-corruption efforts, ensure that management recognizes and gives importance to combating corruption, and make anti-corruption part of the organization's culture.
2. The Audit Committee has the following duties and responsibilities:
    - Review the Anti-Corruption Policy received from management to ensure that it is appropriate for the Company's business, operating environment and organizational culture, and submit it to the Board of Directors for approval.

- Review proposed amendments to the Anti-Corruption Policy received from management and submit them to the Board of Directors for approval.

- Review the financial reporting system, internal control system and risk assessment to ensure that they are appropriate, adequately address corruption risks, minimize the potential impact on the Company's financial position and operations, and suit the Company's business.

- Receive reports of corruption concerns involving personnel within the organization, investigate the facts and submit the matter to the Board of Directors for consideration of appropriate disciplinary action or remedial measures.

3. Management has the following duties and responsibilities:

    - Establish and communicate the Anti-Corruption Policy to employees and all relevant parties so that it is implemented throughout the organization. Management shall also review the suitability of relevant systems and measures in response to changes in business, regulations, rules and legal requirements, and submit them to the Audit Committee.

    - Assist the Audit Committee in investigating reports or assignments relating to alleged corruption. Management may assign the investigation to an appropriate management team capable of establishing the facts.

4. Internal Audit is responsible for auditing and reviewing operations to ensure that they are accurate and comply with the Policy, procedures, authority limits, rules, regulations and requirements of relevant supervisory agencies, so that controls are appropriate and adequate for the risks of corruption. Internal Audit shall report its findings to the Audit Committee.

5. Employees must perform their duties in accordance with this Policy. If they have doubts or observe a violation, they must report it to their supervisor or through the whistleblowing or corruption complaint channels specified in this Policy.

Guidelines for Compliance with the Anti-Corruption Policy

1. Directors, executives and employees at all levels must comply with this Anti-Corruption Policy and the Business Code of Conduct. They must not engage in corruption, either directly or indirectly.

2. If an employee becomes aware of corruption involving the Company, the employee must report it to a supervisor or the responsible person and cooperate in fact-finding. If there are doubts or questions, the employee should seek advice from a supervisor or the person assigned to monitor compliance with the Business Code of Conduct through the designated channels.

3. The Company shall ensure fairness and protect employees or whistleblowers who report corruption by applying the protection measures specified in this Policy.

4. A person who commits corruption is considered to have violated the Company's Business Code of Conduct and will be subject to disciplinary action under the Company's rules. If the conduct is unlawful, the person may also be subject to legal penalties.

5. The Company recognizes the importance of communicating and building understanding of this Policy among stakeholders who perform duties or activities related to the Company or whose actions may affect the Company. They must conduct themselves in accordance with this Anti-Corruption Policy.

6. Actions under this Anti-Corruption Policy must follow the practices specified in the Business Code of Conduct, good corporate governance principles, the policies and practices governing the Company's relationships with different stakeholder groups, the Company's relevant rules and manuals, and any other practices that the Company may establish.

7. To provide clear guidance on activities with a high risk of corruption, directors, executives and employees at all levels must exercise due care in the following matters:

   7.1 Political Contributions

The Company conducts its business neutrally and does not support or take sides with any political party or professional politician affiliated with a political party. The Company will not provide financial support or gifts to any political party, politician or political candidate as political assistance under the meaning set out above, for the purpose of creating business benefits for the Company.

7.2 Charitable Contributions, Donations and Aid Grants

Charitable contributions may expose the Company to risk because they involve payments without tangible consideration and could be used as a pretext or channel for corruption. To ensure that charitable contributions are not used to conceal corruption, the Company has established the following policy, criteria, review process and control requirements:

a) The contribution must be verifiable as supporting a genuine charitable project that is actually carried out, with the purpose of helping the project achieve its objectives and create genuine benefits for society, or of fulfilling the Company's corporate social responsibility (CSR) objectives.

b) Any charitable contribution made using the Company's funds or assets must be made in the Company's name. Contributions may be made only to charitable foundations, public charitable organizations, temples, hospitals, medical facilities or organizations serving a social purpose that are certified or otherwise credible and verifiable, and must follow the Company's procedures.

c) Employees may make charitable contributions in their personal capacity, but these must not be connected with or give rise to a suspicion of dishonest conduct intended to obtain any benefit.

7.3 Donations Received

The Company does not accept donations. The Company may make donations without expecting anything in return. The Company communicates this policy to employees, and management and supervisors are responsible for ensuring that employees in their areas of responsibility comply strictly with it.

7.4 Sponsorships

Sponsorship is a form of business-related public relations that differs from charitable contributions. Sponsorship may be made for business purposes, to promote the Company's products or reputation, or to provide support for services or benefits that are difficult to measure and monitor. Because sponsorship involves payments or the provision of goods or other benefits, it may be linked to corruption. The Company has therefore established the following policy, criteria, review process and control requirements:

a) The sponsorship must be verifiable as supporting an actual project that is genuinely carried out and intended to help the project achieve its objectives and create real benefits for society, or to fulfill the Company's CSR objectives.

b) The sponsorship must be verifiable, and any financial value assigned to the sponsorship or other benefits provided, such as accommodation and meals, must not be connected to providing improper benefits to any person or agency, except for ordinary customary recognition.

c) The sponsor must prepare a written record identifying the recipient and purpose of the sponsorship, together with all supporting documents, and submit them to the Company's authorized approver for approval in accordance with the Company's approval authority levels.

7.5 Sponsorships Received

The Company does not accept sponsorship in cash, goods or any other form from external persons, agencies or organizations.

7.6 Gifts, Hospitality and Other Expenses

The Company recognizes that good relationships and business friendships are important to its ongoing success. Employees may give gifts and/or provide hospitality and/or other expenses to or for any person, provided that all of the following conditions are met:

a) The gift or hospitality is not intended to influence, induce or reward any person for an improper advantage, or to be an explicit or implicit exchange for assistance or benefits.

b) It is permitted by applicable law.

c) It is provided in the Company's name and not in an employee's personal capacity.

d) It is not a cash gift or cash equivalent, such as a gift voucher or cash card.

e) It is appropriate to the circumstances, such as a small gift during traditional occasions such as Songkran, a birthday or New Year, which is customary.

f) The type and value are appropriate, and the gift is given correctly in accordance with Company regulations. For example, when the Company is conducting a bidding process, employees must not accept gifts or hospitality from companies participating in that bidding process.

g) It is provided openly and not secretly.

7.7 Gifts, Souvenirs or Other Benefits Received

a) The Company does not permit the acceptance of gifts, souvenirs or other benefits. The Company is responsible for informing external persons of this policy on a regular basis.

b) If it is not possible to refuse a gift and its value does not exceed THB 3,000, the recipient's supervisor shall exercise discretion in deciding how to handle it.

c) If it is not possible to refuse a gift and its value exceeds THB 3,000, the recipient must inform their supervisor using the gift receipt report form and submit the gift to the Human Resources Department.

7.8 Conflicts of Interest and Related-Party Transactions

Where the Company, a subsidiary or a related person enters into a transaction that may create a conflict of interest, a personal interest or a potential conflict of interest, the Company must comply with the laws on securities and the securities market, as well as the rules, notifications, orders and requirements of the Stock Exchange of Thailand and the Securities and Exchange Commission. This includes compliance with requirements concerning the disclosure of related-party transactions.

7.9 Facilitation Payments

The Company does not have a policy of making facilitation payments. Such payments are prohibited for directors, executives and employees of the Company.

7.10 Employment of Government Officials

When selecting personnel who have worked for or been employed by a government agency, the Company must follow its established criteria and applicable laws. Such employment must not be used to obtain any improper benefit. Information about the employment of former government officials must be disclosed to the public to ensure transparency and enable verification.

Human Resources

This Anti-Corruption Policy applies to the Company's human resources processes, including recruitment and selection, promotion, training, performance evaluation and compensation. Supervisors at all levels must communicate and ensure that employees understand the business activities for which they are responsible, and must effectively monitor and supervise compliance.

Whistleblowing or Corruption Complaints

1. They become aware of corruption related to the organization, whether direct or indirect. For example, they observe someone within the organization soliciting or accepting a bribe from a government official or a private-sector entity.
2. They observe conduct that violates Company procedures or affects the Company's internal control system in a way that may create an opportunity for corruption.
3. They become aware of conduct that harms the Company or affects the Company's reputation.
4. They become aware of conduct that violates laws, morality or the Business Code of Conduct.

Channels for Reporting Whistleblowing Matters or Corruption Complaints

The Board of Directors has assigned the Audit Committee to consider reports, complaints and conduct that may give rise to a suspicion of corruption involving the Company, whether direct or indirect. Reports may be submitted through the channels specified in this Policy. The complainant should provide details of the matter, supporting evidence or information sufficient for an investigation, and their name, address and telephone number for contact.

1. By email:
    1.1 Audit Committee: auditcommittee@unionpetrochemical.com
    1.2 Managing Director: perapol@unionpetrochemical.com
    1.3 Internal Audit Department: thawinan@unionpetrochemical.com
2. Through the Company website, under "Whistleblowing or Complaints": https://www.unionpetrochemical.com/th/corporate-governance-th/
3. By post, in person or by direct submission to:
    3.1 Chairman of the Audit Committee; or

3.2 Managing Director; or

3.3 Internal Audit Department; or

3.4 Company Secretary

728 Union House Building, Borommaratchachonnani Road, Bang Bamru, Bang Phlat, Bangkok 10700, Thailand

4. By telephone or fax: Tel. 02-881-8288, 02-677-3328 / Fax 02-433-7243-4

If the complainant has a complaint about a member of the Board of Directors, the complaint should be submitted directly to the Audit Committee.

The Secretary to the Audit Committee shall compile statistics and information on corruption complaints, including corruption between the Company and government agencies or between Company entities, and submit the information to the Audit Committee for regular reporting to the Board of Directors.

Any stakeholder of the Company may report or complain about corruption. Stakeholders include shareholders, customers, competitors, creditors, government agencies, communities, society, executives and employees. Regardless of the reporting channel used, the Company will keep the complainant's identity confidential.

Protection Measures and Confidentiality

- To protect the rights of complainants and persons providing information in good faith, the Company will not disclose the name, address or other identifying information of the complainant or information provider. Such information will be kept confidential and made available only to persons responsible for investigating the complaint who need access to it.
- If a complaint involves a member of the Board of Directors, the Audit Committee will protect the whistleblower, complainant, witness and person providing information during the fact-finding process. They must not be subjected to any hardship, danger or unfair treatment as a result of reporting, making a complaint, acting as a witness or providing information. The complainant may submit the complaint directly to the Chairman of the Audit Committee.

- The Chairman of the Audit Committee may use their discretion to assign an appropriate person to protect the safety of the whistleblower, complainant, witness or information provider. The person assigned must not be connected with the matter reported, either directly or indirectly. For example, the person accused must not be the direct supervisor of the complainant.
- A person who obtains information through duties relating to a complaint must keep the information, complaint and supporting documents confidential. They must not disclose them to any unrelated person, except where disclosure is required by law.

Investigation and Disciplinary Procedures

1. Upon receiving a report, the Chairman of the Audit Committee shall screen the matter, investigate and establish the facts, and reach a conclusion. The process should take approximately 30–60 days, depending on the complexity of the fact-finding.
2. During the investigation, the Chairman of the Audit Committee may appoint a representative, including an executive committee member, to provide periodic progress updates to the whistleblower or complainant.
3. If the investigation finds credible information or evidence that the accused person actually engaged in corruption, the Company shall give the accused person an opportunity to acknowledge the allegation and present evidence or other information demonstrating that they were not involved in the alleged corruption.
4. If the accused person is found to have engaged in corruption, the conduct shall be considered a violation of the Company's Anti-Corruption Policy. The person will be subject to disciplinary action under the Company's rules and may also be subject to legal penalties if the conduct violates the law. The decision of the Chairman of the Audit Committee shall be final.

5. A complaint made in bad faith, or through a false or improper channel, including an accusation, complaint or provision of information that is proven to have been made dishonestly or in violation of the Company's rules, may result in disciplinary action if the complainant is an employee or officer of the Company. External persons may also face legal action if the Company suffers damage.

For any complaint, the Company's Board of Directors shall receive information and verify the facts as reported, then jointly consider the matter and determine any appropriate penalty.

The Company will not demote, penalize or otherwise take adverse action against employees who refuse to engage in corruption, even if their refusal causes the Company to lose a business opportunity.

Dissemination of the Anti-Corruption Policy

To ensure that all Company personnel, subsidiaries, external persons, customers, investors and stakeholders are informed of the Anti-Corruption Policy, the Company will:

1. Post the Anti-Corruption Policy in a clearly visible location accessible to everyone in the organization.
2. Publish the Policy through Company communication channels, such as the Company website, email and the annual registration statement (Form 56-1).
3. Provide anti-corruption policy training to all employees through employee orientation.
4. Prepare an annual training plan to review the Anti-Corruption Policy with management and current employees.
5. Review the Anti-Corruption Policy at least once a year.

Seeking Advice

Anyone who has questions or needs advice about complying with the Anti-Corruption Policy may:

1. Consult the Human Resources Department or Internal Audit Department:
    - Human Resources Department: ratchaneekorn@unionpetrochemical.com / Internal Audit Department: thawinan@unionpetrochemical.com
    - Tel. 02-677-3328 ext. 211
2. Submit a question anonymously if desired. However, providing the questioner's identity will allow the Company to respond directly and promptly.

Issued for acknowledgement and general compliance. This Policy applies to the Company and its subsidiaries.

Issued on 26 February 2025
